The Rutland News cannot, or will not, believe that kitchen bar rooms flourished to a great degree under prohibition. We had hoped the News was not one of those newspapers that used to shut their eyes and cry out piously "There is no liquor sold."

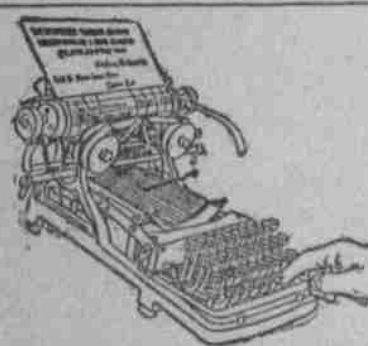

The Vermont clergyman and one of the locators of Goddard seminary, who died last week, may be said to have done a considerable share towards the uplifting of mankind. He preached 4,000 sermons, and if sermons count at all, this man's record ought to have been productive of results.

The news that a general snow storm prevails throughout Montana does not have a congealing effect on sweltering Vermont, nor the report that in California President Roosevelt has been travelling through a heavy snow fall. However, at this season of the year we are satisfied without the snow storm.

With few exceptions there will be no celebrations of Old Home Week in Vermont this year. If any former Vermonters return to their native state they will have to take us as they find us, in our working clothes and hustling. And by the way, there will be one thing to surprise any old Vermonters who come back and that is to find residents of the Green Mountain state hustling. The people are getting into the habit of shaping events, instead of allowing events to shape themselves. More and more the state is becoming imbued with the idea, which is characteristically American of the latter day, that of business hustle. Signs of this are to be seen in the pushing of business activities, the growth of manufactures and the uncovering of the mineral wealth of the state. And the signs will not be unwelcome to the visitors.

Since the seventh day of April scarcely a drop of water has fallen in this section of the country, and as a result there appears to be a fear for water supplies. The cities and towns of this section that depend upon brook and spring sources have good reason to fear for their supplies. Six Weeks have passed and there has not been any appreciable rainfall. Had the drouth happened later in the season the water supplies would have been seriously menaced. Thus far the supply of this city has not caused any particular apprehension, although the reservoirs have been lowered to a considerable extent. It is well for the users of city water to bear in mind that there is a big drain on the supply at times like this and that it is quite imperative that there should be no unnecessary drain. Each user of the water should make it a personal matter.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Forest fires have swept entirely over Wantastiquet mountain and Mine mountain, directly across the river from Brattleboro in New Hampshire, devastating four square miles.

A Boston man recently bought a large farm in Wardsboro, where he and his brother intend to start a large skunk industry for the skins and oil, the latter being in good demand at the present time.

S. S. Holt was admitted to the Vermont soldiers' home from Brattleboro Saturday. He enlisted in Company H, 8th Vt. Vols. from Readsboro. He served three years. He is 73 years old and is in good health.

E. C. Bingham, instructor in the sciences and higher mathematics in St. Johnsbury academy, will close his engagement at the end of this term, and will take a post graduate course in one of the American universities.

At the next meeting of the Scotia club at St. Johnsbury Arthur F. Stone, editor of the St. Johnsbury Republican, will speak on "Characteristics of Scott's Poetry," and John T. Borland will give "Reminiscences of Drumtochty."

The Rutland Street Railway Co. has placed with the Locomotive Car Co. of Locomotive, N. H., an order for eight big 42 foot open trolley cars for the new lines to Fair Haven and Lake Bomoseen. The contract involves over $50,000. The cars must be delivered July 1, when the lines are to be opened.

Senator Redfield Proctor came to Brattleboro yesterday on official business, the nature of which business by request is withheld from publication. Senator Proctor was met at the Brooks House by a large number of citizens yesterday afternoon. He left at 4.35 for New York enroute to Washington.

The contractor's trial of the new Vermont will take place Thursday afternoon. It will be informal and no programme has been prepared. The company's first trip will be Memorial day which will be a special excursion. The first regular trip will be made June 1. There is a rumor there may be a little brush with the Chateaugay Thursday.

Spring Haberdashery.

It's the details of a man's apparel that gives tone and character to his make-up. Poor or poor-fitting Haberdashery, antiquated or obsolete styles of Collar, Shirt, Necktie, etc., does away with the otherwise happy effect of a fine suit. A stroll through our Men's Furnishing Goods Department shows at a glance the newest, best and brightest in the thousand-and-one things that come under this heading—all at prices that fear no competition in this city. This is a man's store, and the man who comes here to trade goes away contented and happy.
